Innovative study which brings together Pakistan and Afghanistan as two inseparable entities for the first time.

"Tied together by policy making circles for strategic purposes and referred to in modern day geo-political parlance as Af-Pak, the region widely known as South West Asia has a rich cultural past and civilizational commonalities which have been aptly brought out in this important new contribution by one of Pakistan's most accomplished and prolific scholars." —Ali Usman Qasmi, Lahore University of Management Sciences

This book juxtaposes vital issues of Pashtun identity, state formation, Taliban on both sides of the Durand Line, Frontier Crimes Regulation, security prerogative and the civil societies of Pakistan and Afghanistan, which since 9/11, have been posited in a rather precarious geopolitics.

Readership

Policy makers, journalists, security experts, foreign and defence establishments both in South Asia and the West, postgraduate students, area specialists from academia and think tanks in the mentioned regions as well as in China, Japan and Australia.
