Ideas for a new and progressive trade and investment regime

“A must-read for scholars and policy makers frustrated by the lack of real alternatives to a global economy tilted toward the wealthy and the powerful.”

—David Kennedy, Manley O. Hudson Professor of Law and Faculty Director, Institute for Global Law and Policy, Harvard Law School, USA

“World Trade and Investment Law Reimagined is a timely and exceptional volume on ways to address the current crisis in the liberal international order to achieve sustainable and inclusive economic globalization.”

—B. S. Chimni, Professor of International Law Emeritus, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, India

“Through a rich and invigorating diversity of perspectives, this book proposes a new progressive agenda that would integrate trade and social policy more fully so as to more broadly distribute the gains from trade.”

—Michael Trebilcock, University Professor and Professor of Law, University of Toronto, Canada

World trade and investment law is in crisis: new and progressive ideas are needed. Rules that facilitated globalization and supported global economic growth are being challenged. A system of global governance that once seemed secure is now at risk as the United States ignores the rules while developing countries struggle to escape restrictions. Some want to tear global institutions and agreements down while others try desperately to maintain the status quo. Rejecting both options, a group of trade and investment law experts from 10 countries, South and North, have joined hands to propose ideas for a new world trade and investment law that would maintain global growth while distributing costs and benefits more fairly. Paying special attention to those who have suffered from trade dislocation and to restrictions that have hampered innovative growth strategies in developing countries, they outline a progressive trade and investment law agenda in "World Trade and Investment Law Reimagined".
