Description

A comprehensive study of war, population and statehood in Eastern Europe and Russia, 1918–1924.

'An exciting collaborative effort... There is no available study with this scope and intellectual boldness... This volume will be a sure hit with a broad set of reading publics, appropriate for specialists in the field and a very attractive introduction for undergraduate students in history, human rights, international relations, and many other fields.' —Mark von Hagen, Professor of History, Columbia University

This new volume, by a team of international scholars, explores aspects of population displacement and statehood at a crucial juncture in modern European history, when the entire continent took on the aspect of a 'laboratory atop a mass graveyard' (Tomas Masaryk).

Readership: Of crucial concern to political scientists, sociologists, geographers, refugee welfare workers, policymakers and others.
