Description

An invaluable reference document for scholars, analysts and policy-makers working in the fields of national and global economics.

Available for the first time in paperback, National Systems of Innovation presents a new perspective on the dynamics of the national and the global economy. Its starting point is that the international competitiveness of nations is founded on innovation. Which role do different parts of the national system play in determining the long-term dynamics of the economy? What is happening to the coherence of national systems of innovation in an era characterised by far-reaching internationalisation and globalisation? These and other issues are addressed in this extended edition, which includes new and updated material incorporating the latest developments in national innovation systems.

Readership:

Students, scholars and policy-makers interested in the economics of technical change in general, and the 'new growth theories' in particular.
